Looking to the Future

This past February, ICRD led an International Affairs Conference on Religion and Diplomacy in Sun Dance, Utah, sponsored by Brigham Young University's Wheatley Institution. During the three days of the conference, 80 college students from around the country wrestled with the challenges of how diplomacy and religion can work together to defuse conflict, with much of that time spent in small working groups on related topics.

The students were highly motivated, worked hard, and enjoyed the experience to the point where BYU has decided to partner with ICRD in sponsoring future conferences on this same topic every two years.

In Case You Missed It

On October 15, the Berkley Center at Georgetown University celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the publication of Religion, The Missing Dimension of Statecraft. Click here for a full video of the event.

In addition, click here to read our latest blog post on curbing the mistreatment of religious minorities.

Wishing you a blessed Thanksgiving,
